Spring into success

Annual Lake Villa, Lindenhurst SpringFest Expo well attended

LAKE VILLA — Even a lagging economy wasn't enough to deter people from attending Lindenhurst and Lake Villa's fifth annual Springfest Family Business Expo at Lakes Community High School on March 29 and 30.

"This was our best year yet," local Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Connie Meadie said.

The crowds at the expo were so large, many businesses ran out of items to give out during the first day, Meadie added.

At the expo, about 150 local businesses, charities, and government representatives got the chance to interact with local residents.

"You can't beat one-on-one contact," Meadie said.

Many residents bring their families to literally get a taste of local businesses and their offerings.

"[The Twisted Cow ice cream shop] had good ice cream," Renee Mulloy said. "I'll be there in the future."

Residents also came out to learn a thing or two such as Jan Sternberg of Antioch.

"I got a couple of great tips,"

Sternberg said.

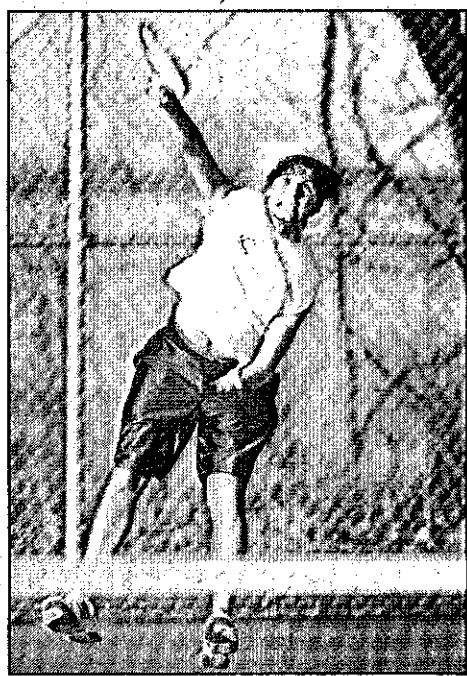

Some residents use the show to scope out local competitors. Rich and Deb Myslinski talked to the expo's landscapers.

"We got very good insight from coming," Rich Myslinski said.

Many businesses use different strategies to attract people during the expo.

Prom a magical time for dresses, air hockey

Prom is a magical time for high school students.

I still remember just how magical mine was. Even though I might not have gotten a good-night kiss at the end of the night, I did win $50 by coming in first place at an air hockey contest at the after-prom party.

Like I said, it was magical.

Last weekend, Cloud 9 Bridal in Gurnee put on a contest in which young women from the area competed to see who could be the top prom model.

Kacie Holop, a senior at Warren Township High School, and eight other finalists participated in the Top

PROM Model 2008 competition at the Lake Villa/Lindenhurst Chamber's SpringFest Expo on March 29.

Holop was named the Top PROM Model. The other participants were Tiffanie Granitz of Grayslake North, Montrique Irby of Zion-Benton, Elyse Jefferson of Lakes, Shannon Korecky of Grant, Marybel Parra of Waukegan, Lauren Smith of Warren, Simone Ramsey of Zion-Benton and Becky Vilre of Warren.

Congratulations to the winner and all of the other finalists.

Tami Wloch, the owner of Cloud 9 Bridal in Gurnee, said that next year she would like to have a prom contest for young men as well.

I think this is a tremendous idea, but only if an air-hockey element is added to the competition, as well.

The Top PROM Model also gave us an opportunity to tell a story without using words.

If you go to our Web site and click on the multimedia section, you will find a photo slideshow of the event put together by Lake County Journals photographer Amanda Schwengel.

We hope this will be the first of many photo slideshows that we put together. If you have an idea that you think would work well as a photo slideshow, please e-mail me at jgrace@nwnewsgroup.com or photographer Amanda Schwengel at aschwengel@nwnewsgroup.com.

Local charities use expo to build new connections

• EXPO

Some offered free candy and food, while other businesses had free raffles and games. Local Civil War re-enactment participator Earl Beese and his grandson built a replica cannon from the Civil War to attract people to the Lake Villa Historical Society.

"I spent nearly 200 hours making it," Beese said.

Delta Health Portal business owner Cheryl McCormick allowed people to try her "Original Chi Machine" - a device that uses side to side movement of the spine to help the body relax, and promote better overall health.

"Just three minutes of the machines helped a person's arm numbness go away," McCormick said.

Local charities and churches use the expo to build connections with local residents and hope to convince people to join. Jaycees representative Terri Miller knows the draw of the expo first hand.

"I joined Jaycees when I saw them at this expo two years ago," Miller said.

One business that was new to the expo this year was CLIX Photography in Lindenhurst. Owner Debbie Franson said she enjoyed her first expo experience.

"We got a lot of positive feedback, talked to a lot of people," she said.

Franson's business opened in December 2007 and she thought coming to the expo would be a good chance for some exposure.

The Lake Villa/Lindenhurst Springfest Family Expo was March 29 and 30 at Lakes Community High School, showcasing local businesses, fun and family entertainment.

Every year, Meadie and the Chamber of Commerce try to make new activities for the expo.

"We work hard to keep it fresh," Meadie said.

Among the new events this year was the "Win a car contest" in which participants donated money for a chance to win a car by guessing its six-digit speedometer number. The money earned during this event went to the Paul Yurs Scholarship fund.

Meadie also said the new Top PROM Model contest put on by Cloud 9 Bridal and the local Chamber of Commerce drew a larger crowd for this year's expo.

"The model contest was well received this year," Meadie said.

Local Waukegan WKRS deejays Jerry and Nick also had a live radio broadcast during the expo.

"The broadcast was really fun," Meadie said.

For this expo's yearly theme, "race to spring fest," Lindenhurst policeman and racing hobbyist Joe Moravec showed his racecar off to the crowd.

Since the event's conception in 2004, the event had steadily grown, utilizing as much space as Lakes Community High School would allow.

"We could have done more with more space," Meadie said.

Despite running out of space, Meadie said she had no plans to move the expo.

"Lakes Community High School has always been so supportive of the expo," Meadie added.

Meadie said businesses like the event so much, they have already signed up for next year's expo.

"We already have about 30 local business sign up for it," she said.

Tasting a cure

Lake Villa woman gets help for Relay For Life team

By DANI SCHWEIGERT
dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

LIBERTYVILLE - When Vanessa Varriale-Oien was in high school, her father was diagnosed with lung cancer. After recovering, he later died from stomach cancer in 1992.

Having been affected by cancer, Varriale-Oien always looks for ways to give back. So when she heard that a local Relay For Life team wanted to do a wine-tasting fundraiser, she offered to host the event at her business, Vintner's Cellar Winery in Libertyville.

Beginning at 6 p.m. April 4, there will be a private wine-tasting party with eight wines and snacks, and during the party through April 6, Vintner's will give 20 percent of its earnings to the Relay For Life team "Generations of Hope." Tickets for the April 4 event cost $20, which also will go to the team. Varriale-Oien said the team captain of "Generations of Hope," Jenny Gapinski, has been a customer at Vintner's since it opened.

"It's for Relay For Life, and I think the American Cancer Society is great," Varriale-Oien said. "I think it's a good cause, and we try to give back to the community."

Varriale-Oien added that she is thrilled to host the event so she, too, can be a part of Relay For Life.

"It's hard as a small-business owner to participate in events like this," she said. "And this is a way I can participate."

Gapinski, of Lake Villa, said she heard about other teams doing wine tastings to raise money and thought her friends and family would enjoy it. She said she had a private wine-tasting party in October at Vintner's and raised $614, so she hopes this one, which is open to the public, will raise $800 to $1,000.

Gapinski has been on the Relay For Life of GLMV Steering Committee for six years, and this is her second year as co-chair of the Relay For Life of GLMV. She joined Relay For Life in part because she is Vintner's Cellar Winery owner Vanessa Varriale-Oien (left) and Relay For Life team captain Jenny Gapinski of Lake Villa will host a wine-tasting April 4 to 6. Of the event's earnings, 20 percent will go to Gapinski's Relay For Life team, "Generations of Hope." Tickets to a private wine tasting April 4 also will go to the team.

Want to help?

• To help the Relay For Life team "Generations of Hope," stop by Vintner's Cellar Winery April 4 through 6. Twenty percent of money earned on those days will go to the team. Vintner's is at 629 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Libertyville. For more information, or to make a reservation for the private wine tasting April 4, call 847-918-9463.

Tickets for the private wine tasting cost $20, which will go to "Generations of Hope." Tickets also will be available at the door. No reservations are required for the wine tastings April 5 and 6.

a cancer survivor. In 1992, when Gapinski was 24 years old, she was diagnosed with ovarian cancer.

"I was looking for a way to give back so no one has to hear the words 'You have cancer,'" she said.

I really believe it's because of Relay For Life that I'm still here. And I believe God left me here to help find a cure.

Gapinski has been on various teams with friends and family members through the years, but "Generations of Hope" has nine people. Five team members are children, and three are cancer survivors, she said.

They came up with the name because "we all hope to find a cure," and there are multiple generations on the team.

"I really believe it's because of Relay For Life that I'm still here," Gapinski said. "And I believe God left me here to help find a cure."

A wave of fun

The Antioch Waves swim team is looking to get its 2008 summer season going.

No, coaches are not planning on swimming a few outdoor laps, but they are looking for swimmers to sign up.

Registration for the summer program is from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 13 at the senior center.

The summer session is from June to July (let's hope it is warm by then), with dual meets every Tuesday and some Thursday and Saturday meets.

Swimmers must be between the ages of 5 and 18, they also must be able to swim the length of the Antioch pool unassisted.

Cost is $140 for the first child, $130 for the second, and $125 for the third child or high school child.

Registration forms are available at the Antioch Parks Department or online at www.antiochwaves.org.

If you or someone you know who loves to swim and is between the ages of 5 and 18, then don't hesitate to sign up because this is on a first-come-first-serve basis.

If you have any questions, call Tom Adamczyk at 847-687-3041, or Kris Roeker at 847-838-0315, or Pam Haines at 847-838-4858.

E-mails also can be sent to swimteam@antiochwaves.org.

The old saying goes April showers bring May flowers. Well, in case our April showers are more like snow than rain fear not, because you can still get your flowers at the Antioch Garden Club Plant Sale.

The sale isn't until May 10 at William's Park pavilion, but keep this in mind if the cold weather gets you down.

Holop, a senior at Warren Township High School, and eight other finalists participated in the Top PROM Model 2008 competition at the Lake Villa/Lindenhurst Chamber's SpringFest Expo on March 29.

The competition was put together by Tami Wloch, owner of Cloud 9 bridal in Gurnee.

"I think it was a great opportunity for all the girls to practice to being in front of an audience, which is so important for the whole rest of their lives to be able to speak in front of people," Wloch said.

She added that this will not be the last Top PROM Model competition, but next year she hopes to add a new twist.

"I think we will probably incorporate guys into the show next year," Wloch said.

For winning the competition, Holop received a free prom dress from Cloud 9; a free tuxedo rental from Savvi Formalwear; a free photo shoot from CLIX Portraits; a free up-do and makeup from Ooo La La Salon; a free three-credit class at College of Lake County; and a $50 savings bond at North Shore Trust & Savings.

"I had so much fun, all the girls were really, really nice," Holop said. "It started off as a fun thing and it ended fun, so there was no pressure."

Holop wasn't the only person who had fun that day.

Elyse Jefferson, a senior at Lakes Community High School, also enjoyed the competition.

"I thought it was very fun, actually," Jefferson said. "I got to meet a lot of girls and become friends with them. It was a nice experience."

In a previous interview, Wloch said, she wanted the competition to be a fun opportunity for the girls. For participant Montronique Irby, a junior at Zion-Benton High School, it was.

"It gave me a chance to do something I've never done before," she said.

All the participants received gifts including portraits by CLIX, which were on display during the expo.

CLIX owner Debbie Franson said being a spon-

The U.S. Senate's passage of a reform bill to control the growing number of unsafe products is a step in the right direction, columnist John Matijevich writes. However, the market principle that states the buyer should beware is something that ought to be done away with. As consumers, we should feel secure with the products we buy.

Local college to present award-winning drama

Students perform 'How I Learned to Drive'

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

"How I Learned to Drive," the 1998 Pulitzer Prize winner for drama, will be co-presented by the College of Lake County Theatre Department and the Women's Center April 11-19. The show is a mesmerizing and darkly humorous tale that explores the disturbing relationship between a young girl and an older man during a series of driving lessons in the 1960s and '70s. The play contains adult content and is not suitable for children.

"How I Learned to Drive" was written by Paula Vogel and is directed by Melissa Thompson, a CLC adjunct faculty member who recently received a doctorate in theater from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She graduated from Grayslake High School in 1991.

The cast includes Erin Baynes (Gurnee) as Li'l Bit, Scott Cook (Grayslake) as Uncle Peck, Whitney Darling (Winthrop Harbor) as the female chorus, Brooke Elbrecht (Gurnee) as the teenage chorus and Justin Kozorow (Zion) as the male chorus. Chorus members play a variety of roles in the play, which employs a series of flash backs and flash-forwards over 20 years in Li'l Bit's life.

"We see Li'l Bit as a woman who's smart, funny and charming. We really love her. We see her come out of a chaotic and horrifying background," Thompson said. "She doesn't come out perfect, but she comes out wonderfully. Li'l Bit really embraces

"The key for Scott [Cook] making this role work is that he has to be totally charming, with no sense that he's creepy or disturbed."

the ugliness of her past and still survives and develops into wonderful person."

CLC audiences last saw Scott Cook in the leading role of John Proctor in last fall's production of "The Crucible." In "How I Learned to Drive," he portrays Uncle Peck, who has an inappropriate relationship with his niece.

"The key for Scott making this role work is that he has to be totally charming, with no sense that he's creepy or disturbed," Thompson said. "All of his scenes take place in memory, so we can put our own cast on it. But his role is going to create some conflict for audiences."

Thompson said that the conflicts and humorous aspects of the play will resonate with many types of audience members - young adults whose adolescent experience is a recent memory, adults looking back on their growing-up experience, parents of teenagers or anyone who was raised in a chaotic family.

The show will be presented in the Studio Theatre at 7:30 p.m. on April 11, 12, 17, 18 and 19 and on Sunday, April 13 at 2 p.m. (with a post-show discussion). Tickets are $10 each for the general public and $8 for CLC students/staff, seniors 65 and older and JLC season subscribers. Prices include a $1 per ticket James Lumber Center restoration fee. Tickets are available at the CLC Box Office in the James Lumber Center on the Grayslake campus, 19351 W. Washington St. Tickets may be bought in person, by phone at 847-543-2300 or at www.clcillinois.edu/tickets. To request sign language interpreting, please call the Box Office at 847-543-2300 at least two weeks in advance. Group discounts are available. For group sales information, call 847-543-2431.

During 2006-07, the College of Lake County Theatre Department attracted 7,324 audience members to 31 performances of five high-quality productions featuring talented CLC students as well as seasoned actors from the Lake County community. CLC will present the musical "Little Shop of Horrors" in mid-July. Auditions will be at 6:30 p.m. May 19 and 20 in the Studio Theatre. The CLC Theatre Department offers an A.A. degree and 12 courses. The department is offering a new course this summer for teachers called Creative Dramatics for the Classroom Teacher (THE 220).

Baseball season represents hope

I love the opening day of baseball. (And no, the Japanese games and Sunday night's game between the Nationals and Braves don't count. I don't need a reason for this. They just don't.)

Of course, I would love the opening day of baseball even more if it wasn't raining and cold and gloomy and all those things baseball just shouldn't be about unless you're a devoted Cubs fan. (Which, sadly enough, I just so happen to be.)

Despite the weather and the Cub factor, opening day still is great for one overwhelming reason. More than any other day of the year, it is the ultimate day for hope.

Now, many would argue for Christmas and Easter and for good reason. But baseball unites all people despite a chosen religion so that's why I must go that direction.

Just think about it.

The opening day of baseball signifies so many things. The true start of spring. The unified hope of so many fans that maybe, just maybe, this would be their year. Did I mention the true start of spring? It can't be cold while baseball is going on. It just can't. (Sadly, someone has failed to mention this to Mother Nature the past two years. She must be a college basketball fan.)

So, even though spring weather hasn't quite arrived, I will toast my Diet Coke to the opening day of baseball and to hope.

Because maybe, just maybe, this will be the year. And spring is just around the corner.

Big oil doesn't need help

While independent truckers across the country protested high diesel prices by slowing down, blocking traffic, and pulling off the road, oil executives testified before Congress about big profits and huge tax breaks.

The contrasting images were jarring.

In Chicago, three truckers were ticketed for impeding traffic on Interstate 55. They drove three abreast at slow speeds.

On the New Jersey Turnpike, there were south-bound trucks "as far as the eye can see" moving at 20 mph, Turnpike Authority Spokesman Joe Orlando told the Associated Press.

Those were just a few of the stories from around the country.

There was no organized effort by truckers. Rather it was a word-of-mouth, loosely configured, CB-driven effort that surely conjured images of the late 1970s film "Convoy" for many. The protests seemed like an act of desperation by people who clearly are struggling.

Meanwhile, executives from the top five oil companies in the country testified before Congress about their profits - $123 billion last year - and stated that their earnings were in line with other industries. Such testimony was justified on April Fool's Day.

Some Congressman even had the gall to suggest that the oil companies give up $18 billion in tax breaks over the next 10 years. The nerve!

We do not begrudge oil companies for making a profit.

Everyone wants to make money. We do begrudge the $18 billion in tax breaks. We do not believe that the federal government needs to help big oil. Big oil seems to be doing just fine.

If the federal government wants to help out someone with tax breaks, they could start with small business owners who seem to almost always end up on the short end of things. If you don't believe us, just try talking to some of those truck drivers.

Don't worry, they won't be hard to find.

Just look for the big rig at the front of the traffic jam.

The undemocratic party

To the Editor:

The Democratic Party has devised a reliance on "super-delegates" to determine who will be their candidate for president. These superdelegates are not elected nor voted for by citizens in the primaries. They are party insiders, officials and bureaucrats.

Sound undemocratic? It is.

It seems that the Democratic Party runs by arbitrary rules that ensure that party officials determine who gets the nomination. The founders of our Constitution warned that nominations done this way would make the presidency merely a servant to the elite special interest groups who appoint it.

John Yoo said: "The Democratic Party has created a system that echoes failed models from the American past, and threatens to sap the presidency of its independence and authority by turning it into the handmaiden of Congress instead of the choice of the American people."

And this from the same party that made a huge fuss about the proven logic of our Electoral College voting system for president. The same party that made such a fuss in 2000 that presidents should only be determined by the direct votes of the citizens', that no vote should be discounted and that any president not getting such is illegitimate! Why does anyone believe them?

A different kind of war

To the Editor:

Sen. John McCain promises to win the war in Iraq if elected president.

The only problem, as I see it, is it's not a war.

Today, there is no trench warfare.

There is no island hopping.

There is no "Battle of the Bulge." There is no Inchon landing and certainly no 38th parallel.

Unfortunately for our troops, there is not one but hundreds of Ho Chi Minh trails carrying insurgents, IEDs, and explosive vests across the borders of Iran, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Jordan into Iraq.

We cannot carpet bomb them to stop the flow.

Our troops, trained to fight in combat, are being used as policemen and are walking their beats in Baghdad and Fallujah hampered by the fact that they do not speak or understand the language of the residents.

Americans not safe

To the Editor:

My deceased husband was a veteran of World War II. I am very proud of those American soldiers and veterans and their sacrifices in that war for our country.

Now for our young soldiers in Iraq, it is a different kind of war, one that consists of sneak bombing, killing of innocent citizens and children, and destruction.

It is a war in which soldiers do not battle an enemy face-to-face in recognizable uniforms.

President Bush tells us in his speeches on the progress of the war that our soldier's ultimate sacrifice is for the protection of the United States and will continue for the duration of his presidency.

It is the price our country has to pay to keep us safe.

American citizens are not safe. Our economy is suffering. People are losing jobs and homes, and prices are rising on all our necessities.

There are no controls over prices by our representatives or fair rationing that was used in World War II to protect the citizens at home.

Consumer-product safety a top priority

As I started to write a column on consumer product safety, I learned that the U.S. Senate had passed a strong reform bill to control the growing number of unsafe products.

That bill and a House version that was adopted last year will be worked out by Senate-House conferees and consumers should look forward to the day when manufacturers must adhere to stronger safety standards. President George W. Bush has indicated that he will sign the bill even though he has reservations of some parts of the legislation.

Consumers have been warned for years "let the buyer beware." That was sort of the principle in the market - when you buy something, you took every precaution that the product was what you wanted at the price that is advertised.

That principle doesn't mean that the seller, or the manufacturer, are absolved from responsibility in the sales transaction.

As far as I'm concerned, if the buyer is supposed to beware, the manufacturer ought to doubly beware. In other words, buyers should have the presumption that products are safe in every respect.

Unfortunately, too many products sold in America are accidents waiting to happen. What is cause for real concern is that the greatest number of unsafe products sold here are made in China. Of 447 products recalled last year by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, 298 were manufactured in China. Comparatively, 113 were made in the U.S.A.

I have never understood when people complain to me that everything should be deregulated. You've heard it said, "get the government out of business." That's easy to say. But, with no regulation, no oversight of standards, and no enforcement, you can imagine that the injuries and deaths caused by unsafe products would increase.

It is important because it would provide a database giving information to the public to strengthen its right to know of consumer complaints of unsafe products and who is making those products.

There have been horrific examples of toy and crib safety complaints that have been neglected even after the products brought deaths to children.

Many complaints were secreted until a Chicago Tribune series, "Hidden Hazards," made the issue that the federal agency could not be relied upon to quickly react to spot dangerous products and to remove and recall the products off the market.

For one thing, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, by design, didn't have the personnel or resources to do an effective job. The commission has often protected the manufacturer rather than the consumer.

Regulation is one thing but when the regulating agency and government take sides with the wrongdoer, that's misfeasance.

The Bush administration has purposely underbudgeted the agency. It has also had the gall to stack the regulatory commission with chairmen and members aligned with the American Manufacturers Association. That's like "spitting in the face" of consumers.

The American Manufacturers Association has argued that providing a database will cause confusion because some complaints might be trivial and some will expose industry trade secrets.

But, the agency can ferret out minor complaints and information not relevant to getting after unsafe products.

No one is after the overwhelming number of responsible manufacturers; it's weeding out unsafe products that we're after.

I believe what is important is making certain that all products sold are safe.

When you allow wrongdoers to get away with their wrongs, they are pre-disposed to repeat those wrongs. We can't let that happen by allowing unsafe products on the market endangering the health and safety of all Americans.

Taking bets on parenting

I'm really not much of a gambler, even though I went to college in Arizona, where a trip to Las Vegas practically is a requirement for graduation.

I never seemed to have much luck or skill for gambling, and my only goal on those Vegas excursions was to have a few dollars left for the buffet.

But if you, like me, don't do much traditional gambling, parenting provides just as many opportunities to live dangerously as Vegas. All that's missing are the free drinks.

For example, care to wager on the color of Easter egg dye that will spill all over the table and onto the floor next Easter?

Speaking from experience, I'd put money on blue.

Is picture day coming up? Then the odds are high that an obvious scratch to the face or a black eye is right around the corner, too.

The fridge is empty and the cupboards are bare, save for a box of granola bars and a can of beans. It might be risky, but I'll wager on a surprise visit from the mother-in-law.

Speaking of risk-taking... Care to take a barefoot walk, in the dark, across that Matchbox car-strewn living room?

Or maybe you'd like to live dangerously and take the kids to McDonald's for lunch, followed by a visit to the merry-go-round.

Even the most common parenting game of chance takes nerves of steel. It's called "grocery shopping before naptime."

These days, I blame all of my bad luck on my husband, Tim. He says that taking his last name means I am now subjected to what he likes to call the "Mangia Curse." (Pretty much identical to Murphy's Law, but to my husband, it apparently feels more personal).

Being subjected to this "Mangia Curse" means I am more prone to expensive car repairs and malfunctioning appliances and less likely to win lotteries and games of chance.

However, if gambling on mom-related situations ever becomes popular, I am pretty sure I could make a buck!

"There's an old wives' tale that you're supposed to grow out of acne. That doesn't necessarily happen."

Dr. Amy Derick, a Barrington-based dermatologist

A face-washing routine can help keep acne away from adult faces. Having a proper skin-care regimen is one way to ensure skin stays clear.

WHEN ACNE GROWS UP

Scourge of teen years follows many into adulthood

By GENEVA WHITE
gwhite@nwnewsgroup.com

Acne was once thought to be confined to that awkward period of adolescence. Teenagers cursed it, taking solace in the idea that those huge zits erupting right before their big dates would disappear by adulthood.

Now it seems as if everyone has acne, even well into their 20s and 30s. Celebrities like Jessica Simpson and Jennifer Love Hewitt can be seen promoting Proactiv Solution on infomercials. Google has more than 1 million results for the search "adult acne."

But to dermatologists, adult acne is nothing new. There simply is more awareness that pimples can be a nuisance beyond the teenage years.

"It's called just 'acne' in the medical community," said Dr. Amy Derick, a Barrington-based dermatologist. "There's an old wives' tale that you're supposed to grow out of acne. That doesn't necessarily happen."

Acne often is hormone-related, but other factors such as hair follicle structure and bacteria also can cause it, Derick said. She cites a study of 749 people 25 and older that showed 54 percent of women suffered from physiologic acne. The condition was present in 40 percent of men.

"Females get it more than males," she said. Common treatments for acne include oral antibiotics and anti-hormone medication such as spironolactone, Derick said. For some women, birth control pills also can help reduce pimples. What's not recommended is trying to pop the pimples yourself, even if it feels like you're speeding recovery. People want to feel like they're doing something, said Dr. Jeanie Downie, the dermatologist-author of "Beautiful Skin of Color." But touching a blemish could make it worse.

"One of the main reasons people pick is to get rid of it, but the bacteria under the fingernails doesn't help," Downie said. "It can even lead to permanent scarring."

Topical treatments such as retinoids (Vitamin A) applied at night also are used for acne. Because these medications can make the skin more sensitive to sunlight, dermatologists suggest making sure you're using sunblock during the day. Laser procedures, which also help to reduce sun damage, are among the latest methods being used to treat acne.

Many of the treatments for acne these days also tackle the signs of aging, Derick said.

"It's becoming popular to try to attack both problems at once," she said. "A lot of these anti-aging wrinkle creams, the ones that are prescription, can prevent acne from coming."

A good skin-care regimen also helps keep skin clear, said Elaine Sauer, corporate spa director for Mario Tricoci, which has locations throughout the Chicago area.

"A lot of people fall asleep and don't cleanse their face before bed," Sauer said. "You want to get rid of all the makeup, oil and all the day's dirt."

And in the spirit of "You are what you eat," diet also can have an effect on the skin, Sauer said. She recommends foods such as Omega-3 fatty acid rich-salmon, cantaloupe and deep-colored berries. Drinking water helps to flush out toxins, she said.

"If you're eating a lot of processed or fried foods, it shows up in your skin," Sauer said. "You have a dull complexion."

Mario Tricoci carries a line of acne treatments that have anti-aging components but are free of benzoyl peroxide. Although the ingredient is found in many other acne products, it's not useful for long-term treatment, Sauer said.

When it comes to applying makeup, Derick said, it's best to stay away from liquid foundation.

"It's better to use oil-free products on the skin," she said. "Oil can block the pores and cause acne. You should avoid things that are pancake makeup."

'Leatherheads' silly fun for adults, kids

Football movie set in mid 1920s

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
sidetracks@nwnewsjournal.com

Somehow over the last 30 years lighthearted movies aimed at adults all but vanished.

After "Star Wars" proved the box office power of youth, if grown-ups wanted to have fun watching a movie, they had to watch "Bringing Up Baby" on home video.

George Clooney obviously did, because "Leatherheads," which he directed as well as stars in, is a throwback to the screwball comedies of the 1930s.

"Leatherheads" is glib, sophisticated and silly.

While a bit too scruffy to be a great comedy, it is enjoyable all the way and written for adults who would like a break from jokes that rely on bodily fluids or reams of profanity.

The story takes place in the world of football as it existed in 1925.

College football is respectable and played in stadiums.

Pro football is roughneck and played in cow pastures.

Clooney's character, Dodge Connelly, is the captain of the Duluth, Minn., Bulldogs.

The league, is on the verge of collapse, and at age 45, Dodge has no career skills that can transfer off the gridiron.

To keep his career going, Dodge convinces America's college football idol, Carter "The Bullet" Rutherford (John Krasinski), to quit

Princeton and join the Bulldogs.

More accurately, Dodge convinces Carter's agent, C.C. Frazier (Jonathan Pryce), to go for the deal, which will net Carter $10,000 a game.

Tagging behind Carter is feisty female reporter Lexie Littleton (Renée Zellweger) of the Chicago Tribune.

Carter became a national hero when he took a sabbatical from Princeton to serve during World War I and single-handedly forced a German platoon to surrender in a story to rival Sgt. York's.

Lexie's editor believes the story is phony and assigns her to prove that Carter is a fraud.

The presence of a feisty female reporter is the clearest sign "Leatherheads" occupies screwball territory, and Zellweger plays her part to the Rosalind Russell hilt.

"Leatherheads" is more enjoyable in the particulars than as a whole.

Carter is likeable, but he belongs to the future of rules and safe moves.

Dodge belongs to a past when grown ups could play recklessly and simply have fun.

In that way, he's a lot like "Leatherheads."

George Clooney (center) stars and directs "Leatherheads."

Wisconsin's first robotic-assisted surgery for endometrial cancer

At Aurora Health Care, patients with endometrial cancer have the advantage of several minimally invasive treatment options, including robotic-assisted surgery. Aurora is a leader in the use of this advanced procedure and performed the very first robotic-assisted gynecologic surgery in Wisconsin. Robotic-assisted surgery is extremely precise, involves less trauma to the patient and less risk of infection. The result is shorter hospital stays and a more rapid return to everyday activities.

'Carter's Way' jazzes up stage

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

Kansas City, Mo., in the 1930s was a hotbed of jazz, which was just emerging on the scene and would eventually capture national attention.

"Carter's Way," written and directed by Eric Simonson, aims to capture the flavor of the time while spinning a tragic love story. The play is being performed at Steppenwolf Theatre with original music by Darrell Leonard.

The play brings together the politics of class, race and gender in an explosive mix.

Simonson sets the scene in the fictional Planet Mars, a club that typified the powerful music's development. Oriole Carter, a talented black saxophonist, leads the house band and reluctantly agrees to allow his music to be broadcast over the radio, a new medium in which some criminal elements were quick to see an opportunity for making a fast buck.

James Vincent Meredith gives a smooth performance as a fiercely independent artist totally driven by music, yet one who, despite himself and the inherent risks, finds himself falling for Eunice Fey (Anne Adams), the starry-eyed girlfriend of a local mob foot soldier (Keith Kupferer).

Fey has big dreams of breaking into the business as a jazz singer, and she insinuates herself in Carter's life, supplanting Ora Jones, the band's arranger and pianist who still carries a torch for Carter.

"Carter's Way" also features K. Todd Freeman as a onetime preacher who now is the colorful club operator and Robert Brueler as the hard-edged local organized crime chieftain who is more comfortable about dealing with ill-gotten city contracts than possible profits from muscling in on the radio business.

The cast is backed by five musicians: Bobby Watson, saxophone; Darrell Leonard, trumpet; Joe Cartwright, piano; Gerald Spats, bass; and Tommy Ruskin, drums.

Blue Bay serves satisfying meals seven days a week

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

Visiting Blue Bay Family Restaurant is a good antidote for the winter doldrums. The sunny eatery is decorated with greenery, murals of the seaside, and a cheery aqua color scheme that reminds you of a day at the beach. And since the restaurant has seating for 130 diners, this writer didn't have to wait long to settle into one of their many comfortable booths.

Blue Bay Family Restaurant also has a family-friendly menu designed to please everyone from children to seniors. "We try to take care of everyone who comes in," said owner John Papaioannov. Not only are there children's and senior's menus, but the restaurant offers Greek, Italian, and Mexican specialties, along with American favorites.

John said he's owned the Blue Bay Family Restaurant since 1986. Prior to that he owned restaurants in New York and Canada. He attributed his success to "good, fast service, quality food and a smile." John added that they have 4 or 5 specials every day, and that even the salad dressings and soups are homemade.

Blue Bay Family Restaurant serves breakfast, lunch and dinner all day, every day. The breakfast menu includes eggs, omelettes, pancakes, French toast, crepes and waffles. There are also hearty skillet dishes like the Blue Bay skillet with hash brown potatoes, onions, tomaatoes, green peppers, New York strip steak, and feta cheese topped with two eggs.

There are just as many choices for lunch. Try one of their burgers, or pick from a wide variety of sandwiches or salads. And, of course, one of their many reasonably priced dinner entrees is always an option. The restaurant offers steak, veal, pork, ribs, chicken and seafood, along with Italian dishes like chicken parmigiana, or Mexican selections like steak fajitas.

I ordered one of the daily specials, the Greek-style chicken, which was delivered quickly by my attentive server. Portion sizes are very generous at Blue Bay; I was presented with half a chicken, potatoes and a large dinner salad. The roasted chicken was moist and seasoned with a delightful lemon herb sauce. And the price was right at $7.75.

Blue Bay Family Restaurant also features a variety of fountain creations to satisfy that sweet tooth. For example, indulge in their deluxe banana split or a triple rich shake. And if that's not enough, try their homemade cheesecake or assorted pies.

Papaioannov thanked his customers for his success. "I appreciate their business all these years and wish to see them keep coming." No question, with Blue Bay Family Restaurant's wide selection of hearty meals, customers will continue to do just that.

Should you ditch dairy while dieting?

(MS) — Most researchers and health experts say, "no." Studies suggest that the nutrients in milk, cheese and yogurt, including calcium and protein, may help people lose weight and body fat. In fact, dairy products may play an important role in regulating energy metabolism. This causes a reduction in body fat and an increase in weight and fat loss. That means instead of eliminating dairy while dieting, replace it with low-fat options like skim milk or reduced-fat cheeses and yogurts to fuel optimal weight loss.

'Perpetual window' opens up

CHICAGO – Lou Piniella knew the question was coming. After all, it was Opening Day at Wrigley Field, which forces everyone to stare that age-old question in the face.

It signals the start of a new season far more than a ceremonial first pitch or some red-white-and-blue bunting hanging from the old green facades.

And so, Piniella came prepared, ready for it, waiting for it.

He smiled when, after a few minutes, it was lobbed in his direction.

You know, Lou, how's the weather? (See, you thought I was talking about that other question, the one that begs "Is this the year?")

With the rain and the cold – what, no snow? – it happens every Opening Day. The weather is a topic.

But this time, when he responded, Piniella answered that larger question, the one that will come up over and over and over again this season as the Cubs "celebrate" the 100th anniversary of that last World Series title.

With two words on this miserably misty morning, in reference to the weather, Piniella offered the world a new way to look at this cuddly, yet undeniably tortured franchise.

"Perpetual window," he said, meaning there would be just enough break in the clouds to open the season, to hand out some beer and some baseball to all those bundled-up people who lined the streets around these ivy-covered walls.

It's how the Cubs and their fans see the world, too, through a perpetual window of hope opened wide enough to allow big dreams to crawl through.

At that moment, Piniella gave a new voice to a nation of fans who for so long have reached for simple terminology while professing their faith.

This is the year.

It's gonna happen.

In Dusty We Trust.

So now, we submit this. Granted, this one is a little more intellectual.

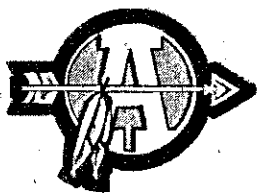

Perpetual window.

It seemed fitting then to give it a try right from the get-go.

Area teams set for season

ANTIOCH

Coach: Randy Digman, third season
Last season: 4-12 overall, 3-8 NSC-Prairie

The Sequoits and boys tennis coach Randy Digman are not setting any lofty goals this season. Instead Digman wants her team to work on improving its game.

Digman's reason for this is pretty simple.

"We're still young," he said.

Digman said the team is made up of mainly freshmen and sophomores.

Because of having such a fresh team, Digman wants the players to focus on aspects of game.

"I'd like them all to learn to keep the ball in play," he said about what they've been working on in practice.

Even though the team is young, Digman sees promise in his No. 1 singles player Garrett Anderson, a sophomore, and No. 1 doubles players Cody England, a sophomore, and Dylan Haley, a junior.

CARMEL

Coach: Nancy Fehn, 10th season
Last season: 11-4 overall, 7-2 ESCC

Going 7-2 in the East Suburban Catholic Conference is nothing to hang your head at, but Nancy Fehn wants more for Carmel's boys tennis team.

"We're going to be very competitive in the conference," Fehn said.

To be competitive, Fehn has set goals that will make them stand out in the ESCC. She would like to get as many wins as possible and be able to send someone to state.

"We have a really good team," Fehn said. "A very seasoned team."

Fehn's seasoned team will turn to No. 1 singles player Reif Etter, a senior, along with doubles teams Andrew Buchholz, a senior, and Chris Butler, sophomore; Mike Levassuer, a senior, and Dan Avampato, a junior; and Spencer Look and Dan Reiss, juniors.

GRANT

Coach: Curt Sheets, first season
Last season: Tied for Prairie Division title with Senior Justin Shea serves the ball at Lakes Community High School tennis team's first practice of the season. The Eagles tied for first in the North Suburban Conference Prairie Division last season.

Vernon Hills and Lakes

It might be Curt Sheets' first year coaching the boys tennis team at Grant, but he still wants to follow up last season's North Suburban Conference Prairie Division title with the same success.

To accomplish that, Sheets and the Bulldogs have been working in practice on key aspects of the game such as placement of shots.

Another benefit for the Bulldogs is that of their eight starters, six are returning from last year's team.

"I think that we're very fortunate that we only graduated two starters," Sheets said.

One player who will be leading the way will be four-year varsity player Alex Marginean. Marginean, a senior, will be the No. 1 singles player.

"We're hanging a lot of our hopes on him," Sheets said.

But Sheets isn't discounting the rest of his team.

"I think the rest of the team is a good group of kids that will really gel," he said.

Lake County tennis coaches set a wide variety of goals for 2008 season

• BOYS TENNIS

GRAYSLAKE CENTRAL

Coach: Charles Lawson, first season

Last season: 11th in Fox Valley Conference

It might be Charles Lawson's first season coaching the boys tennis team, but he's already learned a thing or two about the Fox Valley Conference.

"It's awesome," he said.

Lawson said he learned how competitive the conference is from the fall when he coached the girls tennis team. The strength of the FVC is not going to scare Lawson and the Rams, though.

"We're going to be a little bit competitive," he said.

To do this, Lawson will turn to No. 1 singles player Mitch Granger.

"He's really a good player," Lawson said about the freshman.

John Yee, a senior and last year's No. 1 singles player, Pat Edmondo, a junior, and Roy Pienaar, a sophomore, also will help out with singles play.

When it comes to doubles play, Lawson said, the team is still trying to figure out which set will be the No. 1 team.

Lawson double teams are Brian Dingman, a junior, and Tim Shultz, a senior; Tommy Wolfe and Chris Sodlęko, juniors; Mason Walker and Sterling Douglass, juniors; and Kenny Kwak and Josh Jang, seniors.

Other notable returning players are juniors Brian Miller, Dave Ota, and Kevin Yatsushiro.

GRAYSLAKE NORTH

Coach: Jill Tomasello, second season

Last season: 2-14 overall, 0-10 in FVC

Jill Tomasello views last season as a building season for the Knights boys tennis team. She is approaching this year with a very optimistic attitude, despite not winning a conference game last year.

"This year ... we have a lot more experience," Tomasello said.

That experience comes from her No. 1 singles player Nils Reimer, a senior, and her No. 1 doubles team Drew Hauck and Brian Hook, also seniors.

Tomasello is expecting them to lead the way for the team and she foresees an opportunity for Hauck and Hook to qualify for state.

Tomasello also is looking to increase the teams conference and overall records.

"Our program definitely is improving," she said.

LAKES

Coach: Bryan Plinske, fourth season

Last season: 9-2 NSC-Prairie; Tied for Prairie Division title with Vernon Hills and Lakes

Eagles boys tennis coach Bryan Plinske is feeling extremely positive about this season.

"We graduated a couple of players, but the team remains intact," Plinske said.

After last season's NSC Prairie Division title, Plinske and the Eagles should have some lofty goals to fulfill. But that isn't the case.

When it comes to this team's goals, they are pretty simple – work hard, have fun and learn something.

"If we do all three, then the wins will just come," Plinske said.

Sure, Plinske said, he would like to qualify for state, win the division, and beat rivals Antioch and Mundelein, but the first three are the most important.

"We have a bright outlook," Plinske said.

Part of that outlook is the No. 1 doubles team Charlie Schupham and Justin Shea, both sophomores. Plinske also expects good things from No. 1 singles player Andrew Yopp, a junior.

Randall Haylock and Joey Davis, both juniors, also will be key players this season, Plinske said. Plinske also expects a good performance from Timmy David, a senior, for doubles, but David's partner was not determined as of March 21.

This team has shown its determination to succeed when it went and shoveled the snow off of the tennis courts in order to get in practice.

ROUND LAKE

Coach: Pat Costello

Last season: Finished about 500 overall

Weather problems have plagued the Panthers so far this season. But that is not getting assistant boys tennis coach Warren Bell down.

"We have hopes for this year," Bell said.

Because the Panthers do not have their own courts, they must practice and play at park districts. They also have been limited on gym time, but whenever they get a chance, the Panthers are working on things such as serves and skills, Bell said.

Bell said the team finished on the bottom end of the conference last season, but this year the team is hoping to change that.

"[We'll] try to be competitive with our side of the conference," Bell said in reference to the NSC-Prairie.

To be competitive, the team will look to No. 1 singles player Corey Case, a senior, and singles player A.J. Wyroski, also a senior.

Bell said there are about 35 guys on the team this year.

"It should be a good showing," Bell said.

WARREN

Coach: Greg Cohen, 13th season

Last season: 7-6; Tied for first in NSC-Lakes

Taking 14th place in state sounds pretty good, but finishing in the top 10 sounds even better. That's what No. 1 doubles team Konrad Siczek and Igor Fedorov, both seniors, are hoping for this season.

And the Blue Devils might have a good shot at that with the return of Siczek and Fedorov, sectional champions, and No. 1 singles player Denis Bogatov, a junior who placed third in state last year.

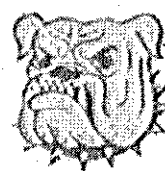

Warren boys tennis coach Greg Cohen also has a positive outlook on this season.

"We're going to compete and do the best we can," Cohen said.

To accomplish that, Cohen will look to seniors Matt Schlais and Jordan Lenz in addition No. 1 teams and player.

But when it comes to future of the doubles teams, Cohen said, freshmen Nikola Trukov and Eric Seiler already are making their mark.

The two have a 7-2 record in varsity already.

WAUCONDA

Lake County girls soccer teams kick off '08 season

ANTIOCH

Coach: Charles Trout
Last season: 8-8-5 overall; 3-2-1 NSC-Prairie

"We're very positive about the season that we're going to have," said Charles Trout, Antioch girls soccer coach.

Trout said some of his top players this season are seniors Kia Miller, F, Suzie O'Connor, F, Kalli Krumos, MF, Christine Kwilosz, MF, along with juniors Katrina Holm, D, and Katie Budd, GK.

CARMEL

Coach: John Halloran, fifth season
Last season: 19-5-1 overall, 8-0-1 ESCC

Carmel is looking to follow up last season's sectional championship.

"We're pretty excited about what we have," Carmel girls soccer coach John Halloran said.

Carmel should be able continue that success by returning 10 starters.

In its front field look for senior Sara Petermann, F, and juniors, Alex Hauser, F/OM, Maddie Ogrinc, CM/F, and Cassidy Brown, F.

Helping out in the mid field, seniors Emily Tripicchio, CM, and Stephanie Swanson, CM, will help with smart plays and their athletic skills.

Helping out in defense are seniors Nikki Boland, D, Kiersten Trillhaase, D, Deanna LaPenta, D, and Julie Schaser, D, and juniors Kelly Schoen, D, Liz Perrenot, D/CM.

GRANT

Coach: Mike Kennedy, third season
Last season: 4-12 overall, 2-3 NSC-Prairie

Mike Kennedy wants to keep things simple for Grant's girls soccer team. He wants the team to compete, now matter what the scoreboard reads.

"(It's) the old cliché, play one game at a time," he said about the season.

The Bulldogs have some younger players on the team this year, so Kennedy is looking for seniors Martyna Kulawiuk, F, Shannon Korecky, F, and Autumn Gaylor to be leaders on and off the field.

GRAYSLAKE CENTRAL

Coach: Mike McCaulou, sixth

Last season: 9-8-1 overall, 5-5 in FVC-Fox

After a second-place finish in the Fox Valley Conference, Mike McCaulou wants the Rams girls soccer team to take it one step better – win the conference.

McCaulou would like the team win regionals, as well.

"They're lofty goals," he said.

With many players returning from last season, McCaulou's goals might not be too far from reality.

Of the 11 returning players, five of them are seniors who should be huge assets for the Rams. On defense, it'll be seniors Rachel Culp, Megan Metzler, and Brianna Anderson. Senior Erin Fitzsimmons will stand out in mid field and senior Daisy Brey, F, is a returning offensive threat.

Also for good things from junior Stefanie Swearingen, D.

GRAYSLAKE NORTH

Coach: Adam DeCaluwe, second season
Last season: 1-18 overall, 0-10 FVC-Fox

Injuries were the Knights worst enemy last year, but girls soccer coach Adam DeCaluwe isn't about to let that get in the way of this season.

"There were big gaps last year," DeCaluwe said.

But the Knights are bringing up three freshmen and returning senior Sara Wimmer, D/MF, from injury, which could swing things in their direction.

"The girls have been getting more prepared in the off-season," DeCaluwe said.

DeCaluwe has a lot of players he sees promise in, including freshmen Chloe Basa, D/MF, Ashleigh Wonsil, GK, and Kim Schurtliff, MF/GK. DeCaluwe also sees success from senior Jackie Staszak, F, juniors Alyssa Smith, MF, Elese Merkovsky, MF, Haley Stojak, D, and sophomores Danielle Wohlfeil, MF/D, and Audra King, F. Another new addition to the team will be junior Taylor York, F.

LAKES

Coach: Kevin Kullby, third season
Last season: 10-7-6 overall, 4-0-2 NSC-Prairie

Graduation took its toll on the Eagles.

Kevin Kullby, Lakes girls soccer coach, said it's hard to predict what this season will be like because of seniors the team lost.

That doesn't keep Kullby from having a positive outlook, though.

"I think we'll be competitive," he said.

Kullby also would like to see the Eagles contend for a NSC Prairie championship and get a chance to compete in the NSC championship, a feat that eluded the team last year.

Northern Air Systems sets service standard

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

If your heating and cooling system needs service or replacement, you can expect superior service and complete satisfaction when you call Northern Air Systems. "I'll do whatever it takes to make the customer happy," said owner Wayne Wodach. "Customer service and quality is everything."

After 4 years of trade school in sheet metal work and 19 years working for other companies, Wayne said he felt he could provide better service by going out on his own.

He said he started Northern Air Systems in 1984 wanting, "to be small and just go out and do a good job." However, business has been booming ever since, thanks to the company's versatility and quality workmanship. Wayne said he now has 14 highly trained and certified servicemen and sheet metal workers with a wide variety of residential and commercial work experience.

In addition to servicing and installing furnaces, air conditioning systems, thermostats, and humidifiers, Wayne said they do boilers, radiant heating, and zone systems. He added that they have done the HVAC (heating, ventilation, and air conditioning) work for projects large and small, such as animal hospitals, the airport, a shopping center, an 110,000 sq. ft. company addition, and large homes.

Northern Air Systems carries brand name products known for their quality and dependability, like Trane furnaces and air conditioners, and Honeywell thermostats and humidifiers. Wayne noted that "we go to school all year round" training to use these products.

"If you like my price, you'll love my work," Wodach said regarding his reasonable prices. Northern Air Systems also offers financing by American General and Trane. "I never sacrifice quality and workmanship to save money," Wayne added. So it's no surprise that 90% of the company's work comes from customer referrals. With a solid reputation for superior service, including 24-hour emergency service, Northern Air Systems is the best choice for your heating and cooling needs.

Walk MS kicks off on the North Shore on May 4

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Join the movement and get walking to help end multiple sclerosis. This year, Walk MS, presented by MS Lifelines and EMD Serono, takes place on May 4 in Highland Park. More than 800 walkers are expected to step off at 9 a.m. at Highland Park High School, making this one of the area's largest charity fundraising events.

The North Shore walk is one of 12 MS Walk events slated for May 4 around the state. In total, organizers will host more than 15,000 women and youth living with MS, their families and supporters as they gather to join the movement to create a world free of MS. A final MS Walk event is scheduled for Sept. 7 in Peoria. The 2008 events are expected to raise $3.35 million to support programs and services for people living with MS, cutting-edge research into the causes and potential cures for the disease and the local, state and federal advocacy efforts that are improving the lives of families affected by MS.

"Multiple sclerosis stops people from moving but we exist to make sure that it doesn't," said Lynda Chott, President of the National MS Society, Greater Illinois Chapter, in a release. "And as we gather together at Walk MS events across the state, we are forming a powerful movement and issuing an even more powerful statement that we are committed to stopping MS in its tracks."

Join the movement and register to participate in the 2008 Walk MS event online at www.msillinois.org or by calling 888-343-1179. Specific details about each of the Walk sites are available online, including maps and directions.

How to turn to friends and family for financial help

At some point in nearly everyone's life there comes a time when you need money but just don't have enough.

From seniors having to pay off unexpected medical expenses to families struggling to afford a home or to send the kids to college, money crunches come in all shapes and sizes.

Rather than turn to a bank for a high-priced loan or max out those credit cards, more and more people have figured out it pays to borrow money from family members and friends.

The benefits are clear: you don't have to jump through hoops to secure a loan, interest rates can be lower and, perhaps most attractively, interest payments go to those close to you and not to the bank.

And these days this age-old solution has a new face, thanks to third party services like Virgin Money (www.virginmoneyus.com) that help arrange loans between family members and friends. Virgin Money takes care of all the dirty work, such as managing the paperwork, helping to set the interest rate and repayment terms, and arranging automatic payment transfers.

Seniors and baby boomers, in particular, are turning to adult children and other family members for financial help. Indeed, thousands of older Americans are living mortgage-free at home but struggling to meet unexpected expenses.

Whether it's the rising cost of property taxes, a car repair or family emergency, many find they don't have enough retirement income to cover surprise expenses on top of their daily cost of living.

"Opening the dialogue is the first step, and finding a way to structure payments and make sure that both parties feel good about it can turn a difficult conversation into an easy decision," says Asheesh Advani, CEO of Virgin Money USA, a company that formalizes and services mortgage loans between friends and family. "As today's boomers and seniors retire, they should look to family and friends as a great alternative source for cash. Knowing the transaction can be structured as a business arrangement, rather than a gift or handout, makes the conversation easier. It's a win-win situation for both parties."

Now, a private loan between parents and their adult children can be an easy and financially sensible decision for both parties. Virgin Money's "Retirement Mortgage," for instance, is a line of credit extended to an aging homeowner funded by relatives or friends. The homeowner receives monthly payments or a lump sum and the lender builds equity in the home. At the end of the term the elderly homeowner can either repay the lender in cash, or the lender assumes ownership of the property.

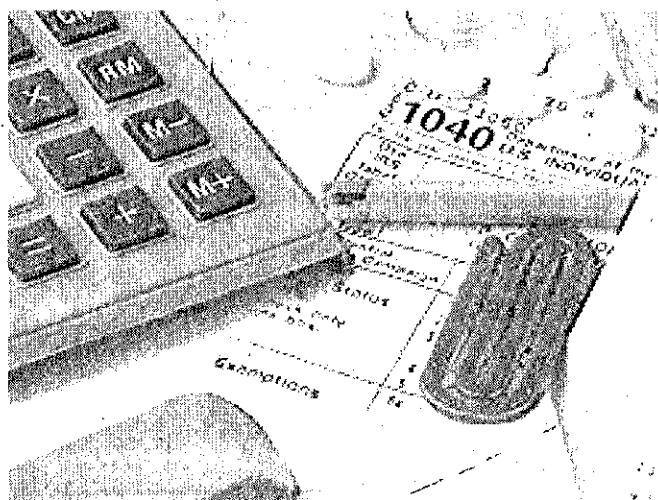

This means a treasured family home will remain in the family rather than being sold by a bank, as is the case in a traditional reverse mortgage.

Retirement Mortgage offers many of the features and benefits that attract people to reverse mortgages, but without the costs and restrictions. Unlike a traditional reverse mortgage, family members don't require mortgage insurance, origination fees or closing costs and set-asides.

Typically, the costs associated with setting up such a loan are a third or less of the cost of a traditional reverse mortgage. And when arranged properly, an intra-family loan can serve as an estate planning or wealth management tool.

"Having an independent third party in the middle of a family transaction is a great way for the borrower and lender to feel comfortable, while keeping wealth all in the family," says Advani.

For more information on intra-family loans, visit www.virginmoneyus.com. — (StatePoint)

WE'RE HERE TO HELP.™

*Harris offers a 5.99% Annual Percentage Rate (APR) on home equity loans of $25,000 or more with a loan-to-value ratio not exceeding 85% and a loan term of 5 years. This 5.99% APR fixed rate would result in 60 monthly payments of $19.23 per $1,000 borrowed, and requires a personal Harris checking account with automatic monthly payments from a personal Harris checking or savings account. (For loan amounts of $25,000 or more without a personal Harris checking account and without automatic payment deductions from a personal Harris checking or savings account, the APR would be 5.99% and would result in 60 monthly payments of $19.80 per $1,000 borrowed.) Funds will be disbursed after the federally mandated cancellation period. Property must be an owner-occupied 1-to-4 family residence in IL, IN, or the WI counties of Walworth, Racine, Kenosha, Milwaukee, and Rock and is subject to no less than second lien position on your property and is subject to our underwriting standards. This offer does not apply to any transaction used to purchase a 1-4 family residence. Property insurance, flood, fire, and theft insurance may be required. Rates are dependent on your loan amount, product and credit qualifications. Closing costs paid by Harris are limited to appraisal, flood determination, title insurance and recording fees. Costs to satisfy certain prior liens may be assessed. Consult your loan advisor regarding the deductibility of interest. This offer is non-transferable, cannot be combined with any other offer, and can be withdrawn at any time without notice. Subject to credit approval, which includes verification of application information and receipt of collateral documents. Offer applies to new applications received from February 22, 2008 through April 30, 2008. Harris is a trade name used by Harris N.A. and its affiliates. Member FDIC.
